Mr. King offered an amendment, that in six months after the re-establishment of the authority of the Unive States, the standing army be reduced to the footing of the act of July, 1861.

Mr. Latham said, as a member of the Military Committee, he wished to explain. He did not agree to all the provisions of the bill. He saw no reason for an inorease of the regular army, and the suspension of the act of babeas corpus, though he was willing to inderse
the sets of the President.

Mr. King said he was willing to sustain all the acts of the President, and yote for any amount of men and

Mr. Lane of Ladians outlanded that the army needed to be increased, and believed coercion the only means of

Mr. Polk spoke against the previous resolutions, and said the President had made this war, which Coogress alone had the power to do, and had increased the army and suspended the writ of habeas corpus, which latter, the King of Eogland would not do. He honored the Chief Justice for the ground taken avairst it, and that necessity is always a tyrant's plea. The President had gone even beyond that, in proclaiming martial law, a thing not in the Constitution.

Hence it is my purpose, representing a congressional district of Kentucky, to opto, e, both my my voice and vote, every movement that looks to the prosecution of the war against the second States.

These being my views and sentiments, I cannot and will not, under any circumstances, give my vote for measures which look to the involvement of our common country in a bloody struggle, the results of which to both sections, will be the destruction of their material and best interests, and the prostration of republican government on this continent.

On the morning of the 5th, Col. Siegel, with a portion of his regiment, part of Col. Solomon's regiment, and ten pieces of artillery, in all from 1100 to 1200 men, attacked a body of 6000 rebels under Gen. Rains and Col. Parsons, about seven miles cast of Carthage, on the prairie.

Col. Siegle then fell back on Mt. Vernon, where he could be supported. Some captive efficers, taken about 5 o'clock, reported the loss at near 250 on their part, but as the severest fighting was done subsequent to that hour, it is believed their loss is considerably greater. Forty-five prisoners were taken.

Our loss is 8 killed and 45 wounded and missing. The battle in which Col. Wolff was killed aws fought on Saturday 30 miles from Springfield.

Cincinnati Market.

Cincinnati Market.

Cincinnati, July 10.

The Produce trade has, throughout the week, been confined to the wants of the local market. Flour has dropped 30 to 400 per bol. below the quotations given a week ago. It may be that the decline has induced some well and the purchases for special orders, but they are so limited as to afferd no religing standard for the market. Quotations are quite irregular, and asl's reported on the book at the Exchange rive considerable disantisfaction—
Where the blame rightfully belongs is hard to discover. Some attach it to the inspection, some to the designs of those who make reports, some to carelessness, and so on. Superfine was hard to buy to day below $3.60, and equality as hard to sell at $3.55. Extras are quoted at $3.75 to $4.00. and Family at $4.25 to $4.30.

But very little wheat was offered to-day, so that holders have a little more nerve, and ask from $1.55 per but, higher than they did a day or two syo. There were males of Spring at 61 14.262 16. Frime Red is held at A052.703. White numerally at $9.00.

Corn is held at $4.253 per but, above the quotations given last week, and sales during the last three or four days have been easily made at that figure. The market is only sustained by the light receipts, and distillers are very slow to pay 30c.

Outs command $20 in bulk readily, and sellers generally as $2 tc.
